MORE THAN MEETS THE EYE

The Reality Behind the Image

To truly understand Bayside, people had to look beneath the surface and beyond the obvious. Being a Marlin meant more than just wearing red and gold; cheering at football games; or going to dances. Being a Marlin meant giving your best in the face of victory or defeat.

A Bayside education did not end when the bell rang. Athletes, scholars, cheerleaders, and student leaders: those labels only told part of the story. After-school activities combined with academics to educate the total person. There were many roads to the same destination. That destination was excellence.

Those who aimed to understand Bayside soon found that there is always More Than Meets The Eye.

Masquerading Marlins

Spirit Week Makes A Fashion Statement

Spirit week brought out the best and worst dressed Marlins. Bayside students and teachers masqueraded as nerds, hippies, and members of the opposite sex.

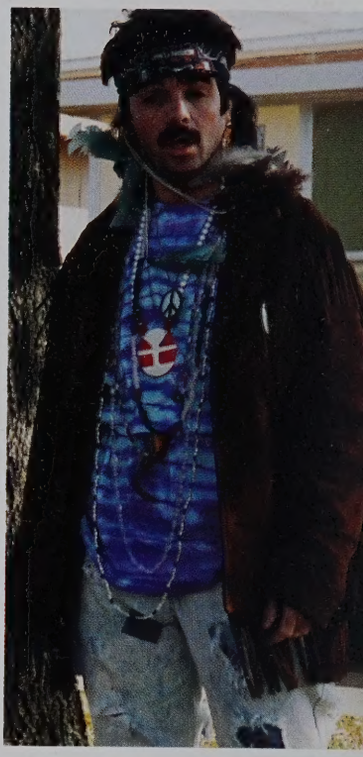
College sweatshirt day, nerd day, pajama/twin day, G.Q. day, and red-and-gold day rounded out a week to celebrate Bayside spirit. Teachers wore outlandish clothes from their own high school years on hippie day, revealing hidden and often hilarious sides of their personalities. Nerd day revealed what many people had already suspected: there were lots of closet nerds out there.

The culmination of Spirit Week was Mock Homecoming. At that Friday's pep rally, there was a Bayside tradition that defies all tradition. Guys dressed as girls and girls dressed as guys for a one-of-kind Homecoming competition. The guys tried to be as sexy as possible to pass as ladies. Tight skirts, plunging necklines, and plenty of padding seemed to be required. The girls went for the stud look. One male-wannabe even taped fake hair on her chest and under her armpits.

In the final analysis, Mother Nature knew what she was doing. Those guys were not meant to be women and those girls should stay girls.

Besides being the comic highlight of Spirit Week, Mock Homecoming definitely proved that There Is More Than Meets The Eye.

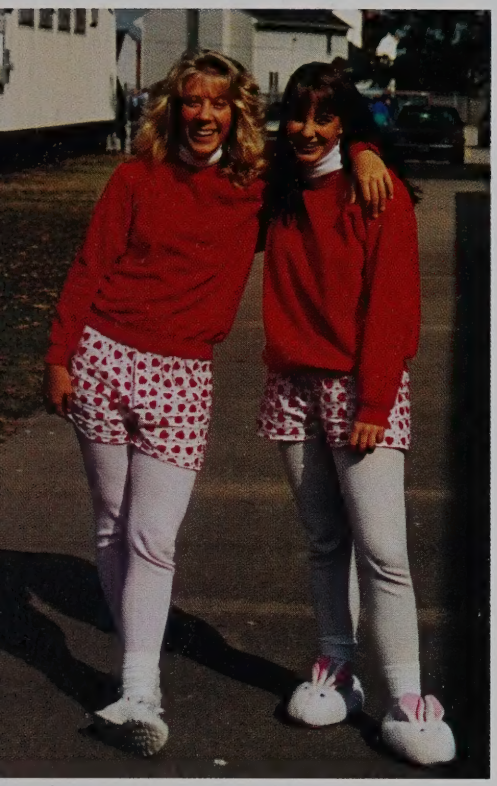
Sad Clowns.



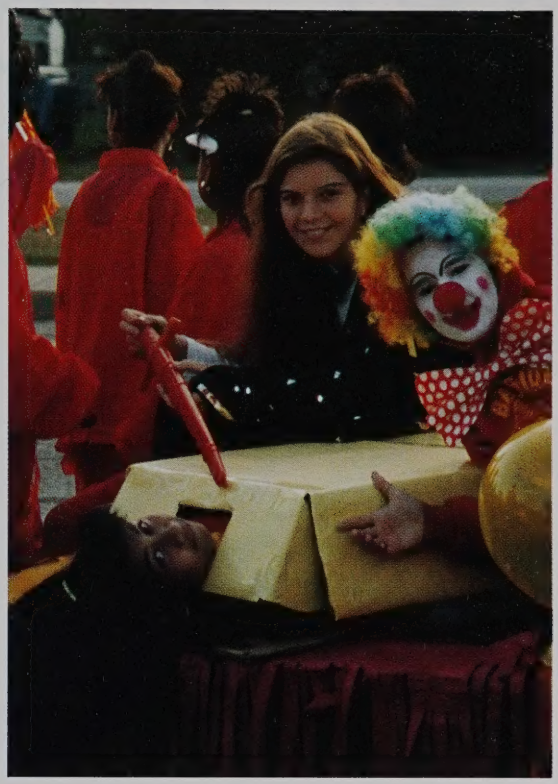
Woodstock at Bayside.

Who is that woman!?

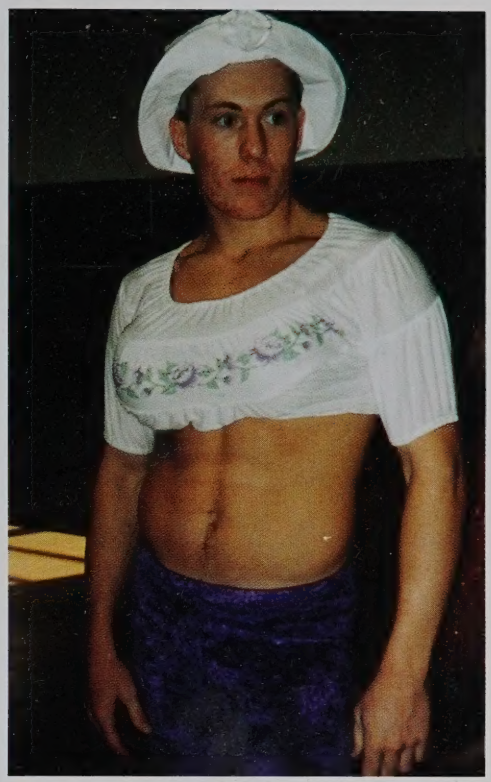
Heart to Heart.



This won't hurt a bit. Trust me; I'm a clown.



The guys are sure to notice me now.



H-e-e-e-e-r-e comes the Bride!

Okay, so we called each other last night and planned our outfits.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming was a time of transformation.

Ordinary students became glamourous stars for an evening. Football players became glorious warriors. Commonplace trucks and flatbeds became colorful floats that lined Haygood Road for the traditional Bayside Homecoming Parade. All of that glitz and glamour seemed magical, but weeks of hard work created those illusions.

Meeting on cold, wet weekends was not the first thought that came to mind for Homecoming, but that was the story for club members who prepared floats for the Homecoming parade. The first and most difficult task was finding a flatbed for the float. The second task was coming up with an idea that fit this year's theme "Those Who Dare." After these steps were completed, all that was left was the physical labor. Marlin "sweat ethic" came in handy and the parade was a resounding success. The Freshman Class and the Future Homemakers of America won the float competition.

Hours of practice and dedication paid off on the football field during the Homecoming game against Kellam High. The Marlins defeated the Knights 63 to 28. That victory was only one highlight of a winning season and was a perfect ending to a great week.

During half-time, the Marlin Marching Band performed before the sell-out crowd and complemented the presentation of the Homecoming Court. The Homecoming King and Queen were Lovell Wilder and Tasha Kwamina.

Ordinary students were elegantly transformed for the evening. The same people who felt at home in jeans during the day were equally at ease in tuxedos and evening gowns. Once again proving that there is More Than Meets the Eye.

Practice Makes Perfect

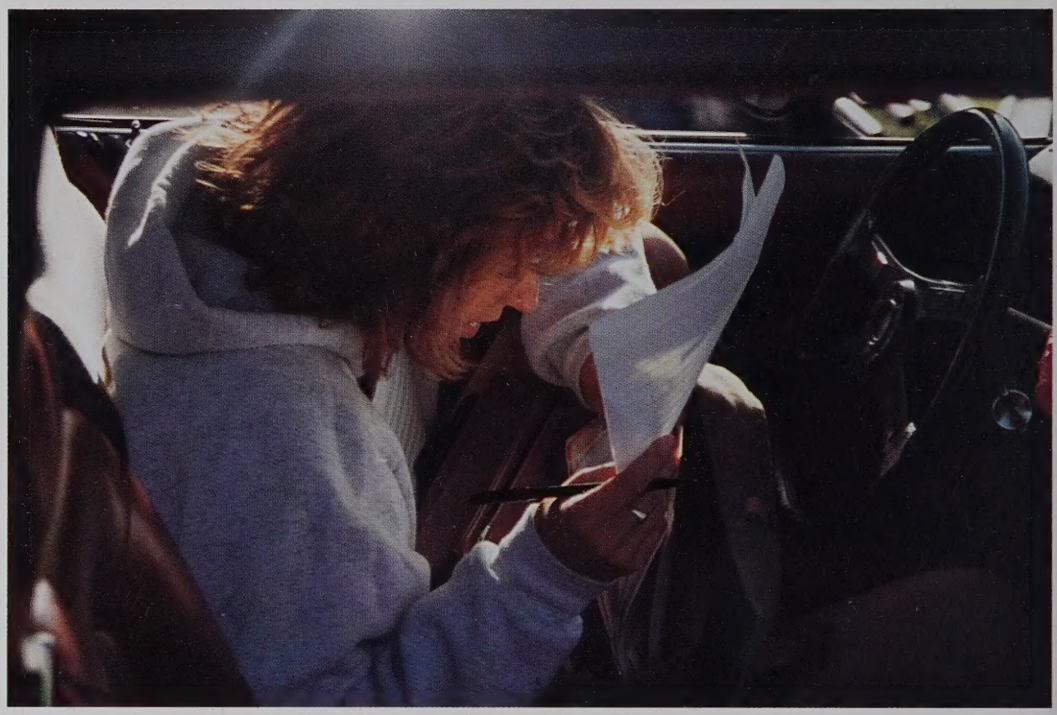
Behind the Scenes.

Behind every performance, game, or publication, there was some sort of rehearsal, practice, or rough draft. Most people only saw the finished product, but those involved knew the effort and preparation involved.

Every day after school, Bayside was filled with students preparing for tests, sporting events, performances, and any number of activities. Sometimes all those hours of work resulted in one victory or one performance. Yearbook staffers even logged Saturday hours and were surprised to find plenty of company.

After those long hours of preparation, students learned to view events in a different light. They appreciated the effort and not just the result.

The Thinker. Powers of concentration allow this student to block out distractions and focus on her work.



Think Tank. Cramped quarters didn't prevent Ms. Moore from taking time out from training to do some paperwork.

Think Fast. Quick thinking was critical to the J.V. football team's victorious season.

Hacking Away. Lois Hyatt wastes no time at the computer lab.

FORE! Chris Hoffer swings into par.

Perfect Form. This is how it should be done.

Something In Common

Friends: Side by Side

Going to the movies or parties without friends
Just wouldn't have been the same.
They always took the heat
When there was no one else to blame.
They made us laugh,
They made us cry,
They never asked the question, "Why?"
They were always there through thick and thin.
They were by our side, lose or win.
On bad days, they made us smile
And you hoped they'd be around awhile.
But as graduation drew near
And school came to an end
We remembered past years
Spent with Friends.

Three's Company. These friends came to the game together, but there minds seem to be going in three different directions.

Pizza Party. Game? What game? We came for the pizza.

LUNCH BREAK. To break the monotony of cafeteria dining, Dennis Paniza and friends took advantage of the warm weather and "chill" outside.

Strike a Pose!

le Bonding. Duane Dicks and friends demonstrated that messages didn't have to be verbal to be understood as they said eace" to Bayside students.

Get Wild And Crazy!

Cutting loose and letting go often led to some strange sights at Bayside.It seemed like people jumped on any opportunity show their wackiness. Football games provided the perfect setting for silliness and people took full advantage of it. Cheerleade had no trouble getting fans to display their Bayside Pride. Teachers got into the act and put their dignity aside in the name of fun

Sign O' the Times. A Different Approach stepped to a different beat. There unique routines jazzed up the pep rallies.

Twist and Shout. Always ready to psyche up the crowd, cheerleaders lead Bayside fans in a cheer.

Animal Appetite. Z-104 Zoo dee-jays showed that the food is one reason to stay in school. They visited Bayside as part of their "It's cool to stay in school" program.

Loud and Rowdy. Football games were one place where it was okay to cut lose.

B-A-Y-S-I-D-E!! Bayside cheerleaders didn't need an excuse to show their spirit.

Cross Your Heart. Ashley Parr serves Ross Steeves' fashion consultant.

Seniors

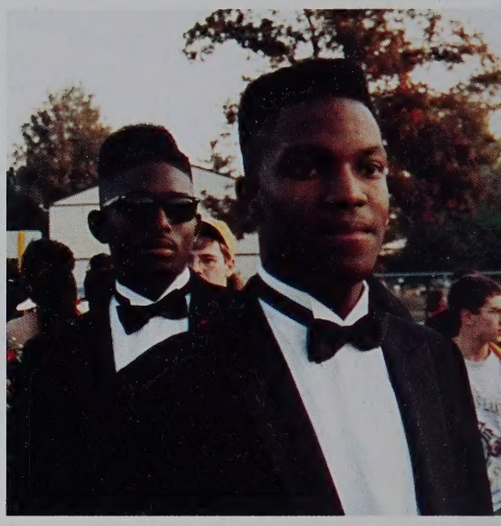
Shaping A United Future. It was a time of beginnings and endings. It was a time of greetings and farewells.

Seniors spent the year preparing for the future and trying to preserve the past. College and career plans were put on the front burner after years of preparation.

Seniors looked back on their days as tenth-graders and realized how much they had grown and changed. They looked ahead to their future and wondered what changes were in store. It seemed as if they tried to store up good times and happy memories to look back on. Ordinary events took on new meaning. Suddenly, Homecoming was the last Homecoming; parties were the last parties; and exams were the last exams. It was the end of one way of life, but the beginning of another.

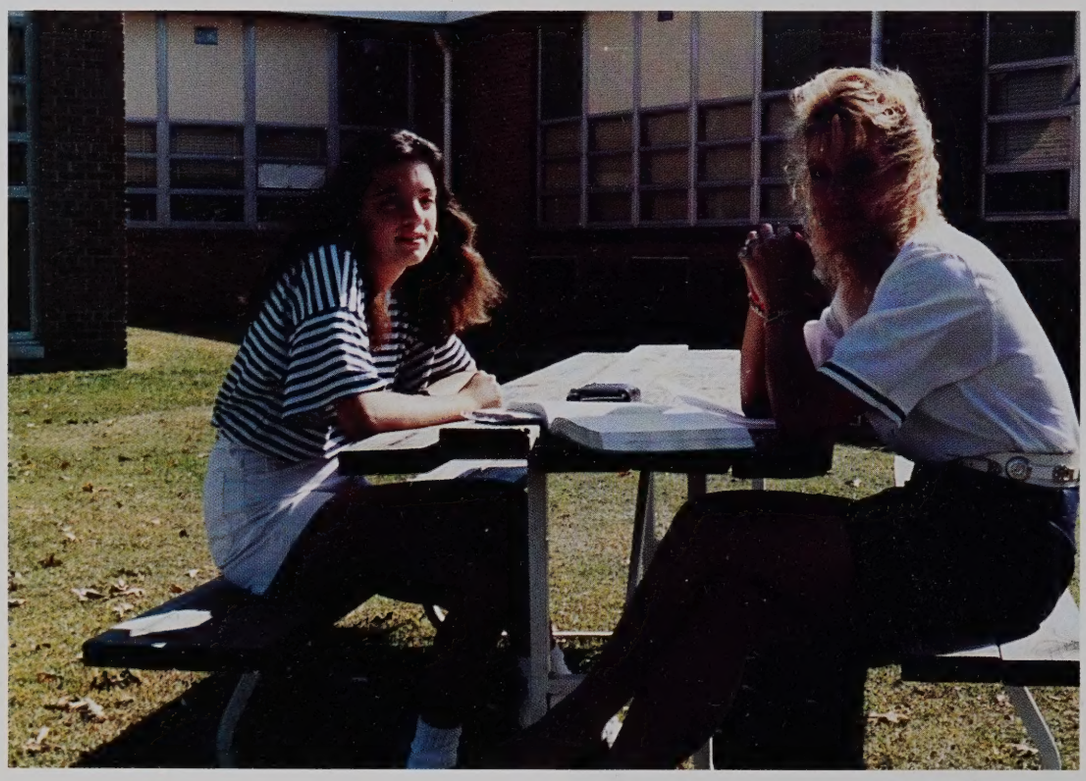
Some of the memories were lighthearted: powder puff football; scholarship basketball; and secret pals' with teachers. Some of the memories were serious: applying to colleges; taking SAT's; and saying goodbye.

The seniors' aspirations, spirit, and accomplishments became part of Bayside history. When the Class of 1993 left Bayside they took their memories, but they left their legacy behind.



Bond. James Bond. Kenny Escoe and Lovell Wilder (a.k.a. Maxwell Smart) prepare for the Homecoming parade.

Sign of the Future. The sign says it all.



Ms. Tribett helps Nikki Graveno with her Algebra II/Trigonometry work.

Seniors At Last! Dave Daniels, Ashley Parr, and Christine Mynes took a moment out of their busy schedules to share a laugh.

Rank Has Its Privileges. The Senior Courtyard is reserved for the best. Here, seniors Brandi Smith, Josette Bellmore, and Anje Laufer enjoy their long-awaited privilege.

Below He's Not A Senior. This little dog frequently tried to get into Bayside, but had to settle for the kindness of strangers outside.

Looking Forward to the Future!
A group of seniors took a break during cap and gown photographs to look forward to the future and revel in the fun of being seniors.

Alan Siegler is appropriately framed by artwork. Siegler impressed many Marlins with his artistic ability and outlook.

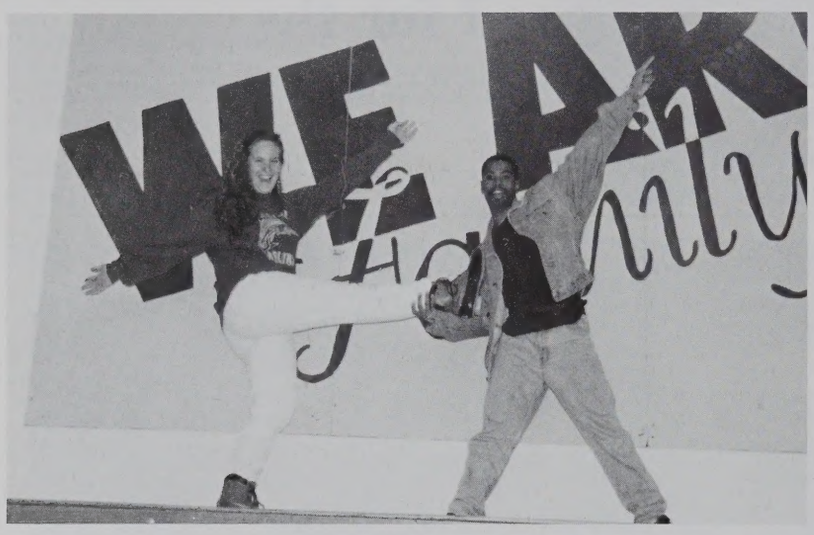
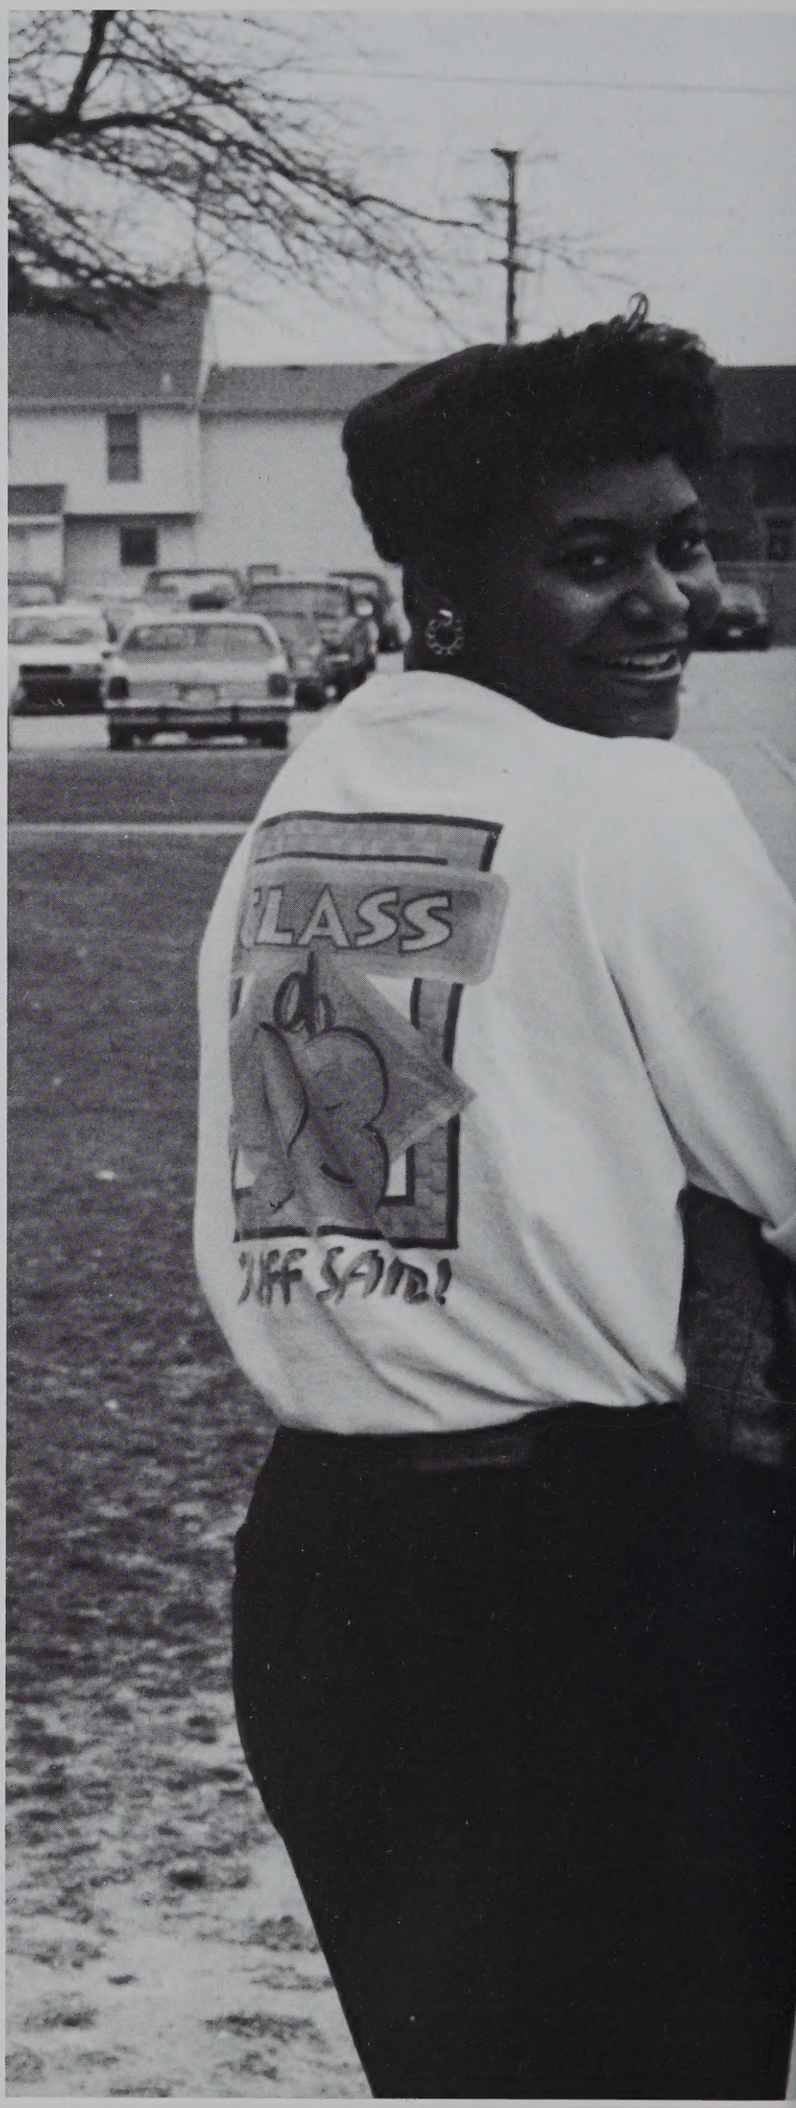
We are Family! That motto is more than lip service at Bayside. An attitude of care and concern pervades the halls. Marlins rally together in times of sorrow and rejoice together in good times.



Class of '93 rules! Karlah Bass shows her Bayside Pride with a shirt that says it all.



FAMILY!

Bayside feels like home

Bayside was more than an ordinary school. Something special happen once a person became part of the Marlin family. Marlins stuck together. They took pride in one another's accomplishment. They provided a shoulder to lean on or to cry on.

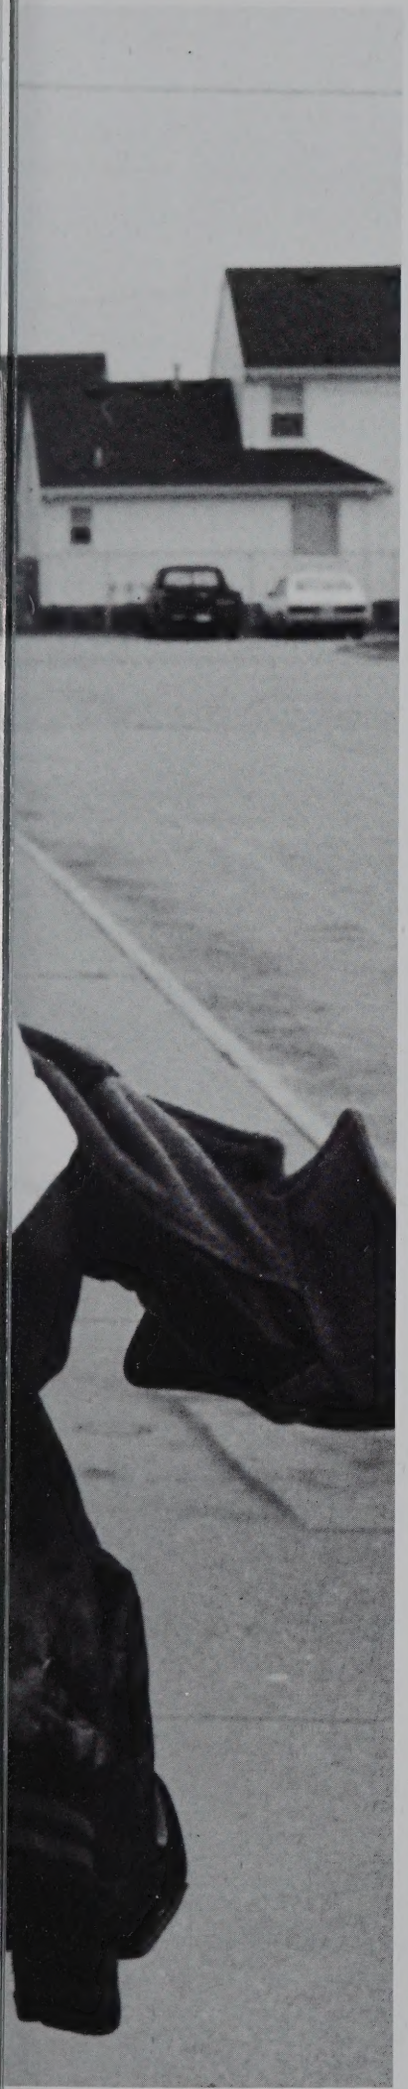
Like any family, Bayside had diversity as well as unity. The Bayside family took pride in its athletic accomplishments, academic achievements, and extracurricular awards. Many Marlins excelled in all three arenas.

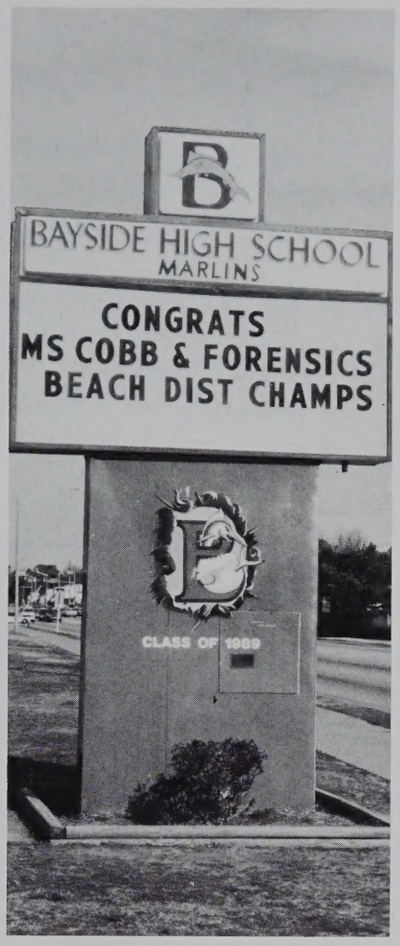
Bayside teachers were always ready to lend a helping hand. They spent extra hours helping students with class work; sponsoring clubs and activities; and coaching sports teams. They provided friendship as well as teaching subjects during class time.

Bayside students were encouraged to dream. One major source of encouragement was the accomplishments of other Marlins. That example of excellence spurred many Marlins onto greater heights than they ever imagined.

It is difficult to say what is impossible, for the dream of yesterday is the hope of today and the reality of tomorrow.

Robert Goddard





The marquee heralded Marlin achievements throughout the year. This message congratulates Ms. Cobb and the Forensics team on their Beach District Championship.

Bayside Pride the Feminine Side. Young ladies at Bayside enjoyed a series of workshops and assemblies that addressed the special needs and concerns of young women.

Parents turned students for a day. Parents spent a day at school with their children to gain insight into their lives. Needless to say, it was an enlightening experience. Here, Ramon Tungol and his father enjoy lunch in the school cafeteria.

Two of a kind. Tela Scott and her mother pose for the camera during parent day at Bayside. Dozens of parents were seen navigating the hallways, fumbling with lockers, and trying to keep up with the students.

Stop! Listen!

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Announcements kept Marlins informed about meetings, deadlines, and a variety of school happenings. Often the announcements served as a source of entertainment: on Friday afternoons music poured from the loudspeakers as students headed to the buses, cars, bikes, and walkways. All genres were covered including rock, reggae, and rap. The Friday musicals were educational (especially for teachers) as well as entertaining. Here, Sarah York manned the mike for morning announcements.

Junior/Senior Unity

Senior Cathy Cochran and Junior Erin Stubbe show that friendship goes beyond class distinctions. Many students crossed age barrier for friendships and romances. Commented one students, "Most of us grew up together and live in the same neighborhoods, it's only natural that we should be friends." Another student said, "Having older friends has certain advantages: they have driver's licenses and know the ropes, such as which classes and teachers are the best."

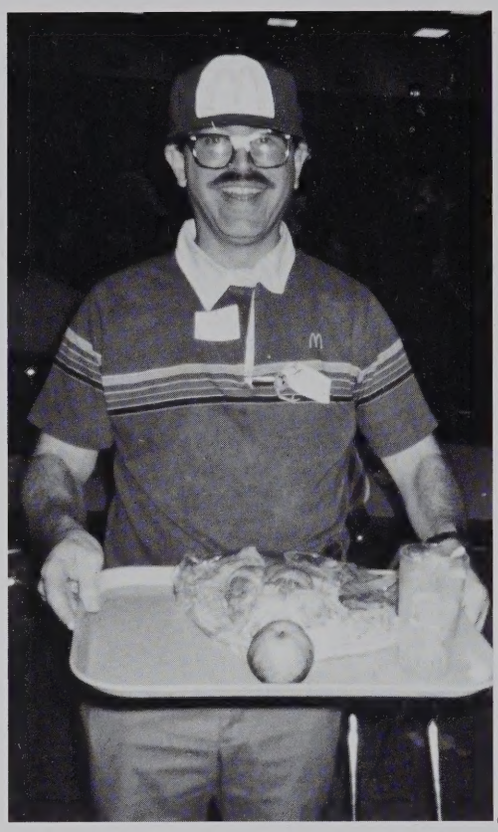
Teachers In Disguise



Who's that? It's your worst nightmare. A teacher in disguise. Teachers and staff participated in dressing up for Halloween. The math department was known as the Great Pumpkin Patch as they all wore plastic pumpkin bags. Dressed as gypsies, the guidance department predicted the future for many students. The winners of the contest were Ms. Ashby who dressed as a Vietnamese peasant and Ms. Kurz who dressed as a fighter pilot.

Incognito!

Sunglasses seemed to be the best way to disguise oneself while expressing yourself at the same time. Sunglasses provided the perfect way to see and be seen. Here, Rodnee Dildy makes a fashion statement while enjoying lunch with her friends Shera Bullock and Nicole Williams. Maybe the brightness of Rodnee's smile prompted the sunglasses. "Rodnee always seems to be in a good mood," commented Ms. Best. "Her million dollar smile is her trademark."

Birthday Greetings

Birthday Balloons. Balloons seemed to be the birthday greeting of choice at Bayside. Students could always tell whose birthday it was by the balloon bouquets attached to their lockers or delivered to their classrooms. As colorful and decorative as the balloons were, they also presented a problem: what to do with them all day long? Some students stashed them in their cars or in a classroom. Others carried them around. Here, Courtney Jarrett and Denise Taylor pose in the cafeteria with some birthday greetings.

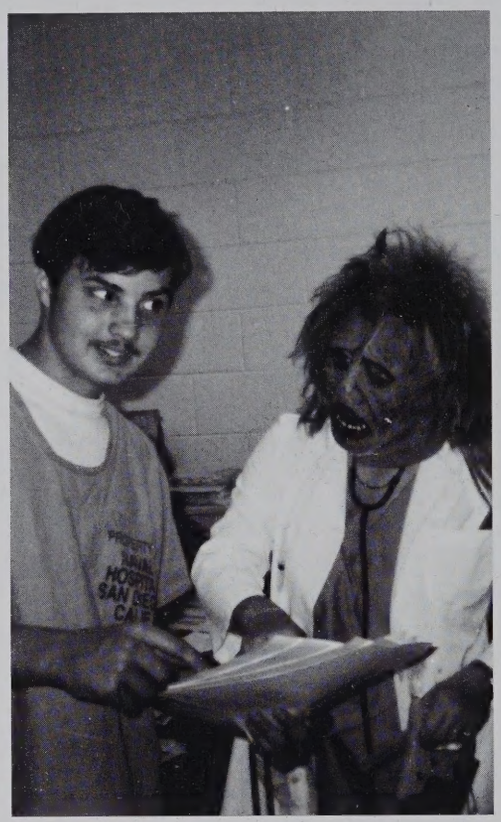
Serious Discipline



Sophomore Grant Altomore looks worried since the "mad scientist" is actually Assistant Principal Charna Lane. The discipline dished out by this doctor might include more than detention and a phone call home. Not to worry Grant, Ms. Lane wore the costume to observe Halloween and actually wouldn't hurt a flea. Still, he might not want to take a chance.

Just Clowning Around

These two clowns found the meaning of true friendship when they put on their funny make-up and noses. They did not fit in with anyone except one another, so they had to stick together. They said, "We don't mind getting laughed at; it's fun. Anyway, we try to think of it as people laughing with us, not at us."

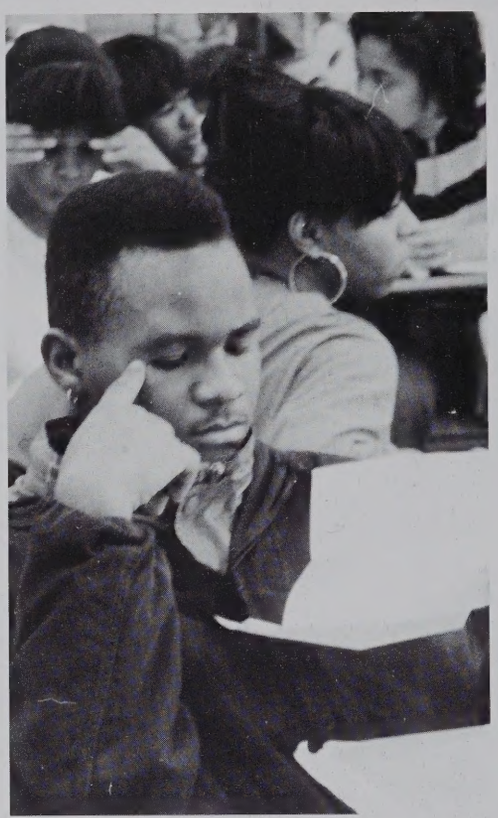
Deep In Thought.



Sophomore Jamal Parker ponders the best approach for an article for journalism class. Sophomore year seemed to be less difficult for students than the nerve-racking ninth-grade adjustment most students had to deal with. It was also less-pressurized than either junior or senior year. Many sophomores might argue that all the grades were pressurized.

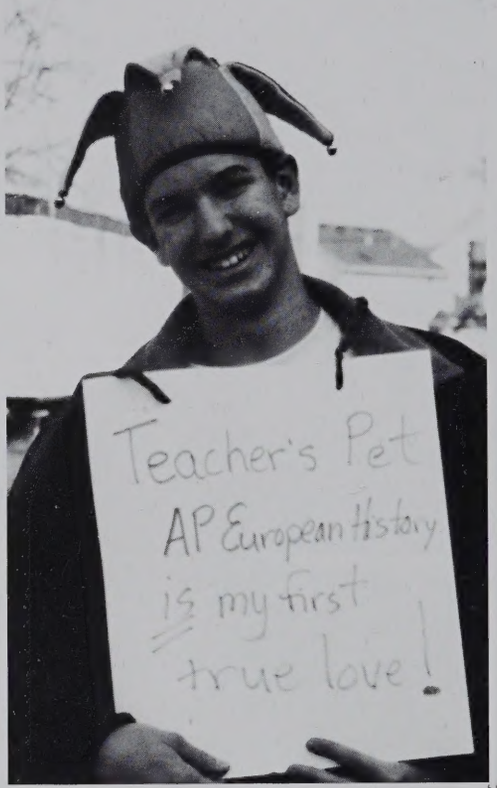
Rent-A-Sophomore Day



Renting Sophomores was a great way for friends to have fun with friends as well as teachers to get even with students. Sophomores were asked to perform a variety of silly acts, and funny feats. Among the sophomore performances were singing, dancing, and wearing signs. Jacob Outland looked especially cute with his ponytails. Tylesha Knox serenaded passers by in the hallway, and Patrick Marzluff had to wear a sign to his favorite teacher, Mrs. Trombino.

What's the 411?

The library was the place to go for information on that all important research paper or report. Some students dreaded going to the library, while others spent their lunches bells there to read and relax or catch up on school work. Either way, it was always a full house. The friendly library staff made the place a relaxing haven for many students who wanted to avoid the mad rush and noise of the cafeteria. Here, library worker John Long helps another student check out a book.

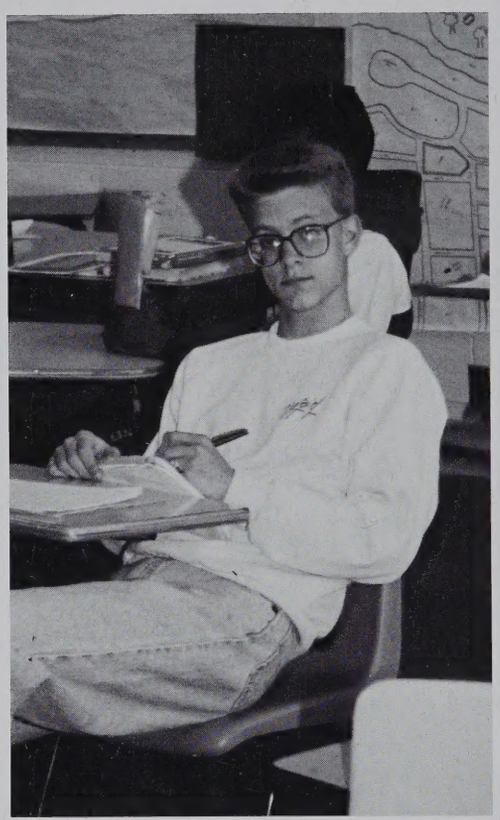
Freshman Transition



What do you like most about high school?
Susan Zimmy:
"There are more privileges than Junior High."
Renee Barnes:
"It's easy to find my classes."
Amanda Hartman:
"I like the teachers and all my friends."
Who is your favorite teacher and why?
Susan Zimmy:
"Mr. Daon because he is a fun teacher and Mr. Nobles because of the way he teaches and I think he is a really great person."
Renee Barnes:
"Ms. Heard because she explains things correctly and she is a nice teacher."
Amanda Hartman:
"Ms. C. Wilson because she is nice and a good teacher."

Taking Pride In Bayside

Freshman went back to nature and beyond to display their creativity. Here, an Indian maiden and a leopard lady mingle with ordinary citizens. The nature themes extended to BEAR Club activities such as recycling cans and beautifying the school grounds. Taking pride in Bayside was something that the freshman class had in common with upperclassmen. They went out of their way to display their Bayside Pride.

Secret Admirers

Roses are red. Violets are blue. Who are you? Valentine's Day was filled with roses, balloons, and stuffed animals. Many students received singing telegrams, carnations, and cards from their boyfriends and girlfriends as well as from their secret admirers. Here, freshman Kristy Bynum showed off her Valentine's Day gifts as did many other Marlins. She also seemed to be wondering who her secret admirer was.

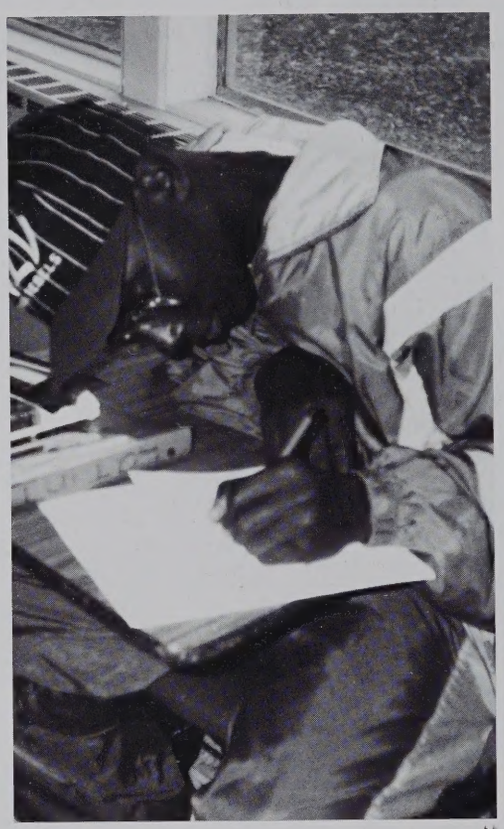
Freshman Get Involved



Freshman John Corprew spent much of his free time working for the yearbook. Corprew was a co-editor in junior high school and brought those talents with him to the Mariner. He excels in photography and copy writing. His talents were utilized to the utmost, particularly reporting on sporting events. Mariner staff members pitched in in all areas: layout, photography, writing, and production. Here, Corprew writes some copy in order to meet a Mariner deadline.

Administration

Bayside Central

The main office was home to many functions: attendance, discipline, and information to name a few. While many students may fear a trip to the office, the atmosphere in 'Bayside Central' was warm and relaxed. The sound of Mr. ''D's'' laughter welcomed students and visitors.

Mr. Soltner and Mr. Debranski confer on school business in the main office.

Ms. Becky Barraclough capably handles a rush of students with a variety of needs.

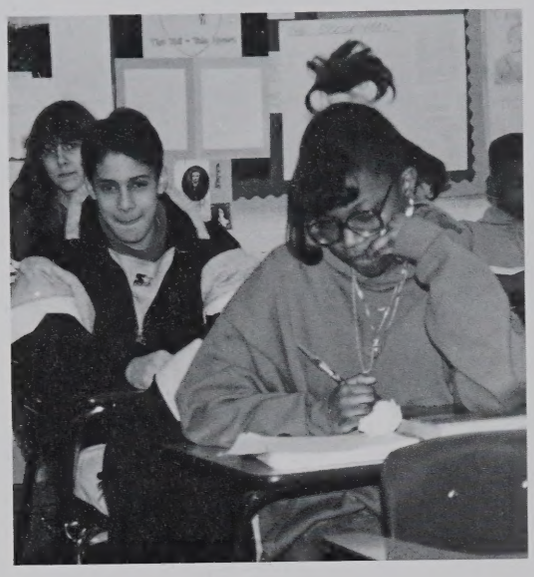
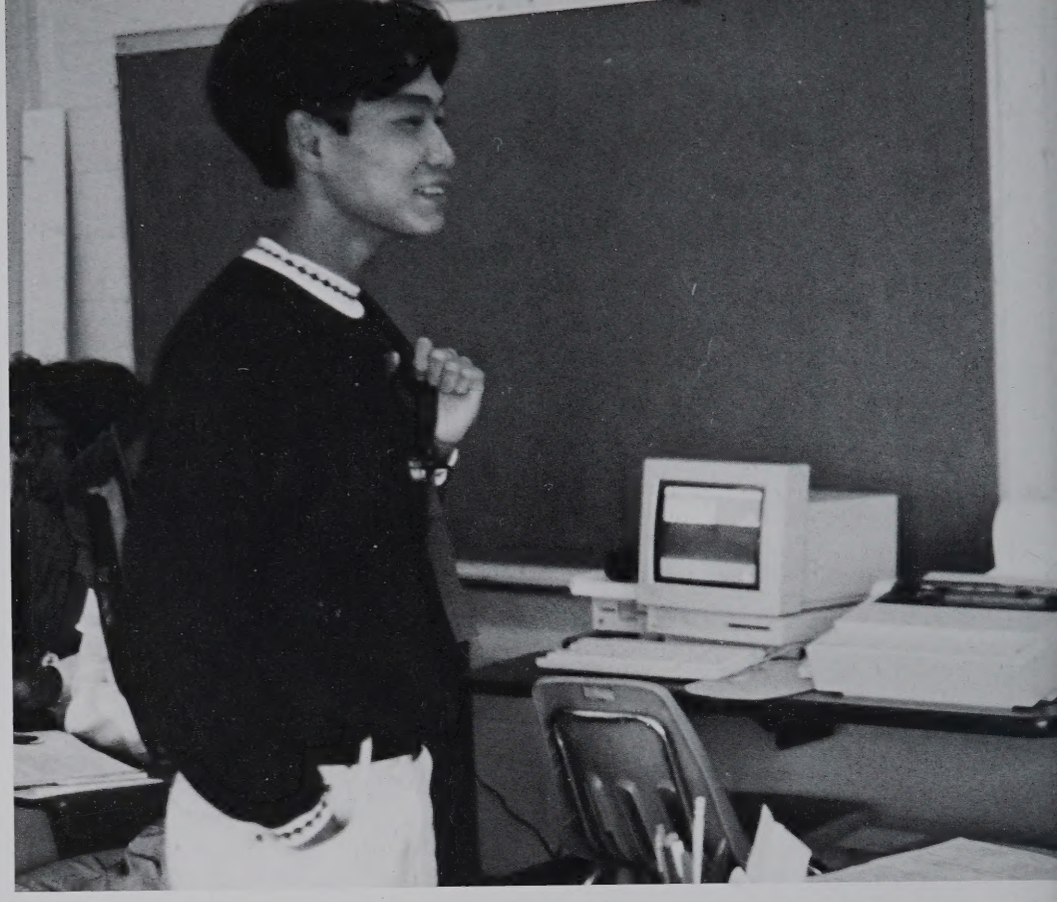
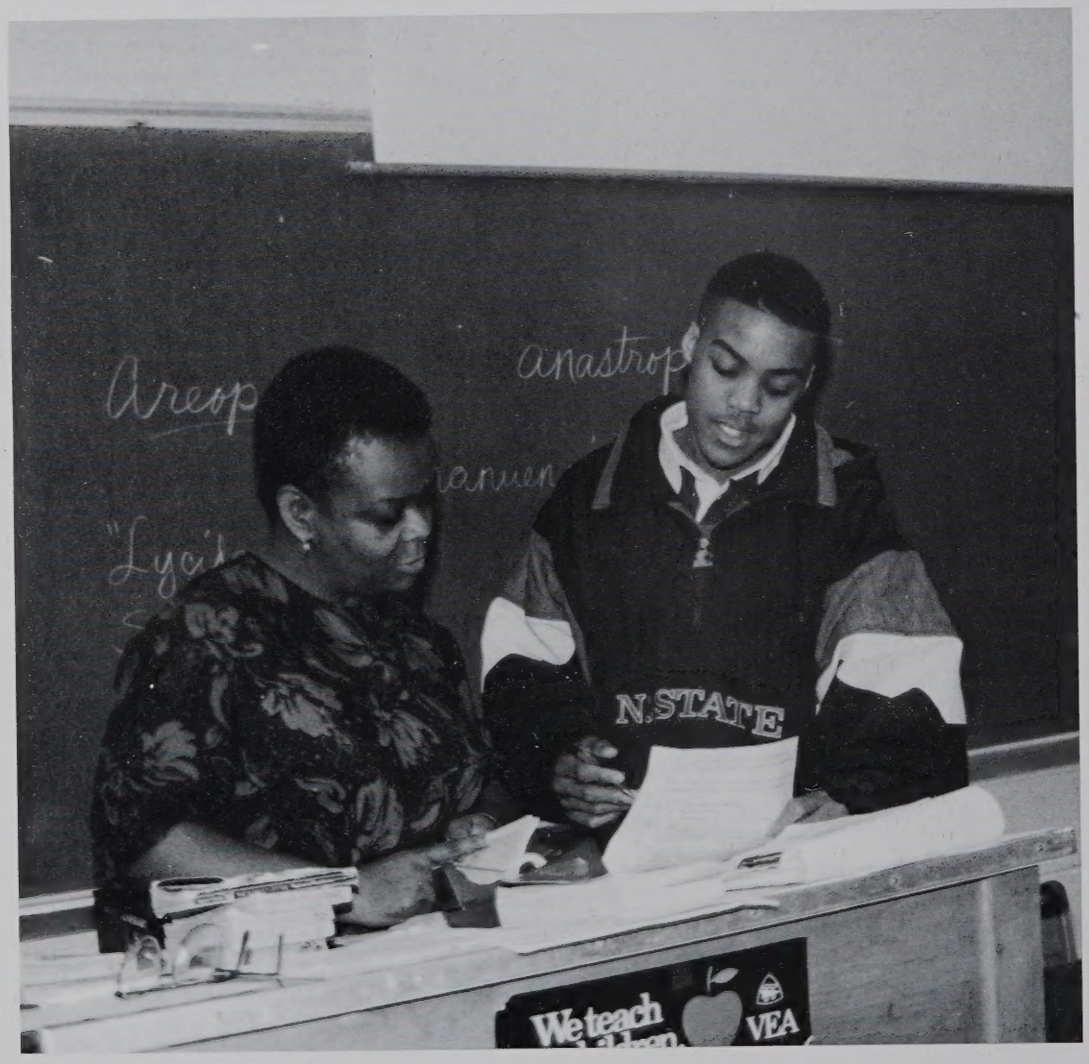
Academics

Communications Skills teacher Betty Rogers shares a light moment with a student.

Anthony Mancillas stares off in thought during Ms. Elliot's Honors English class.

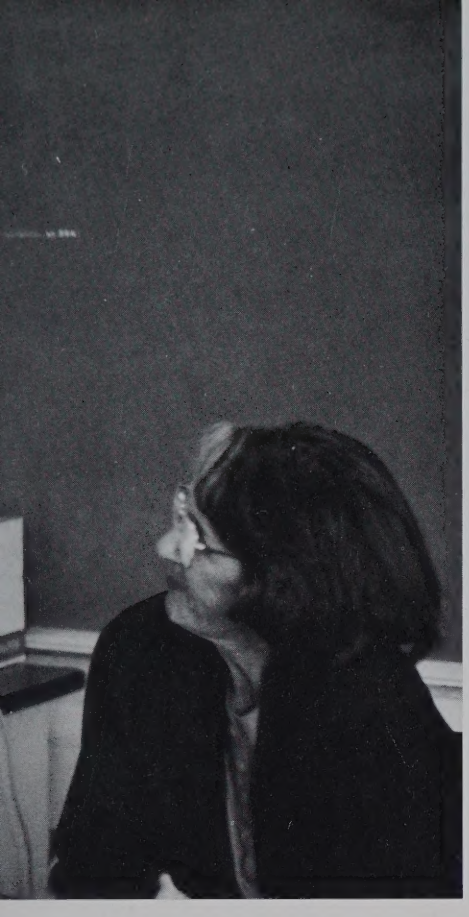






Mike Goffigan gets some help on a paper from Ms. Williams.

Jamie Menendez concentrates on her writing assignment in Ms. Rhodes' English class.



English classes inspire joy and fear

More Than Words

Q What affect do stories have on people's lives?

A "If I can stop one heart from breaking, I shall not live in vain; If I can ease one life the aching, Or cool one pain, Or help one fainting robin Into his nest again, I shall not live in vain." Emily Dickinson

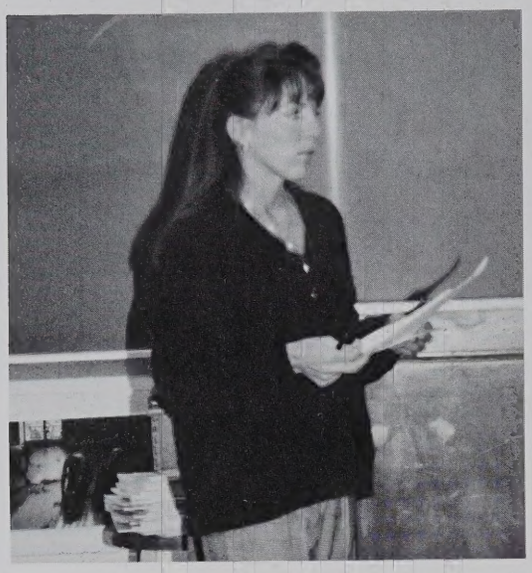
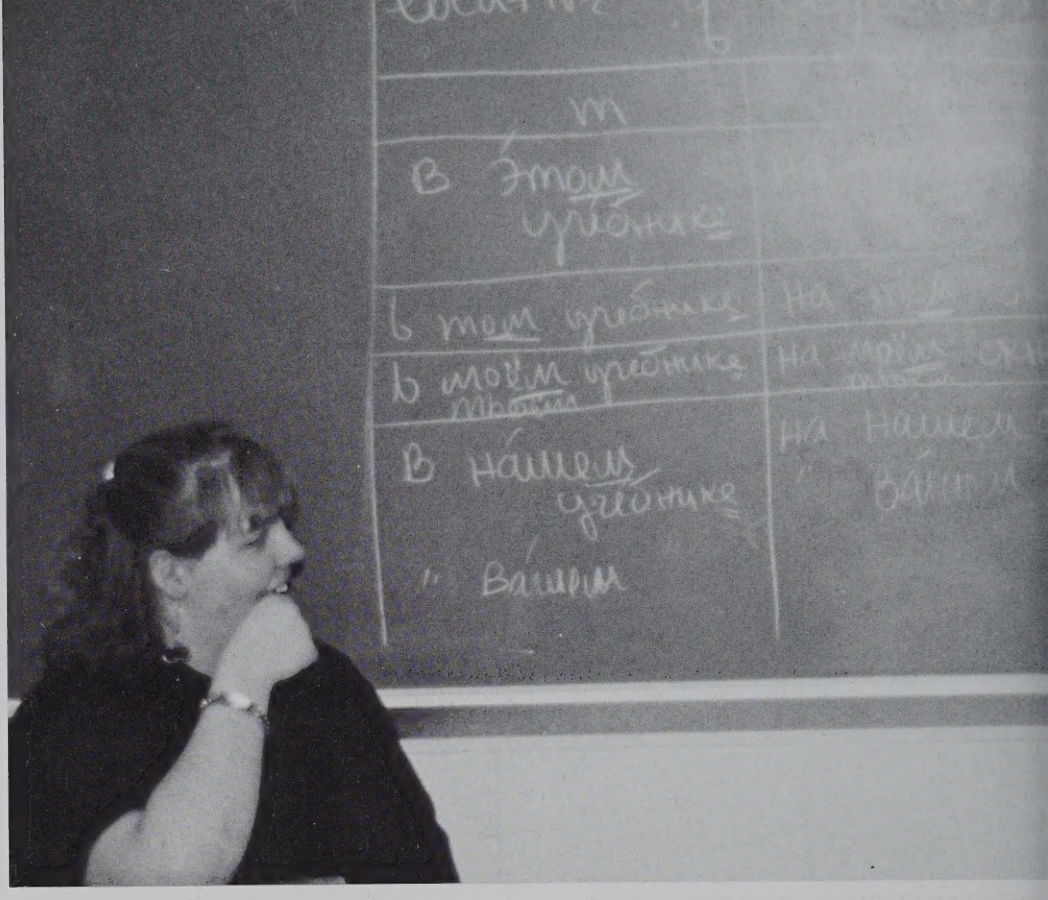
Books and computers combine perfectly for the English class of the nineties.

English teacher Karen Rhodes infuses her classes with drama and energy.

Ms. Proescher shares a laugh with a student during Russian class.

Comment t'allez vous?





J'ai oubliez! Obviously, forgetting an answer is a common excuse in English and French.

Cross Culture. Pop culture transcends language.

Bi-lingual students consider themselves world citizens . . .

What's language got to do with it?

Q What's so foreign about foreign languages?

A "I decided to take a foreign language to prepare for college and for the fun of it. It's actually hard work, but I feel like it will be worth it."

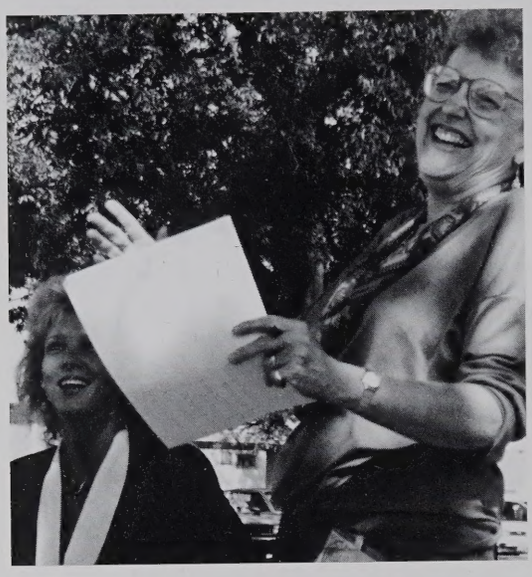
Spanish class requires deep concentration.

Mr. Wadle emotes in Espanol and encourages his student to do the same.

Ms. Hankins assists a student with classwork in her Algebra class.

Math Humor. Ms. Tribbett and Ms. High share a laugh between classes.



Ms. Kier's able assistance guides this student through a difficult math problem.

No math anxiety here! This student seems completely at home in math class.

Mathematics go beyond basic information

Does it count!

Q How do students deal with math anxiety?

A "Instead of concentrating on why we can't do anything, we would be wise to change our "yes, but . . . " attitude to a more positive one." Liane Coides

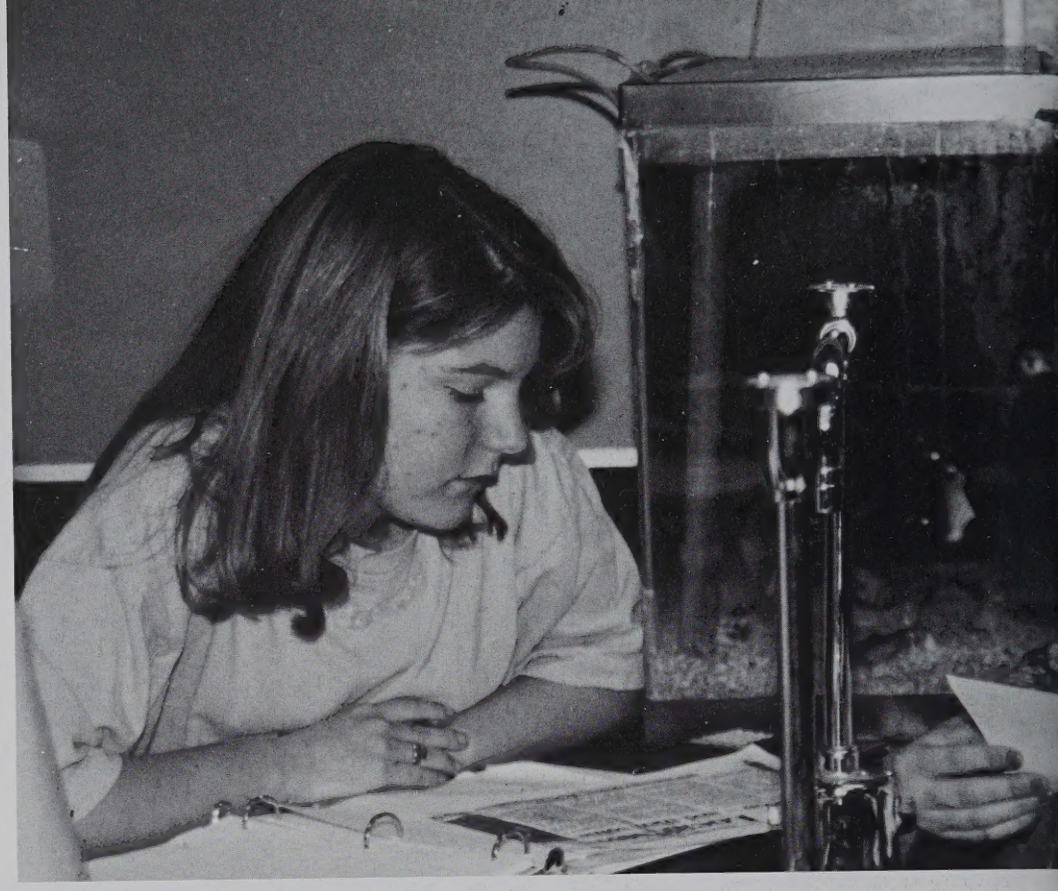
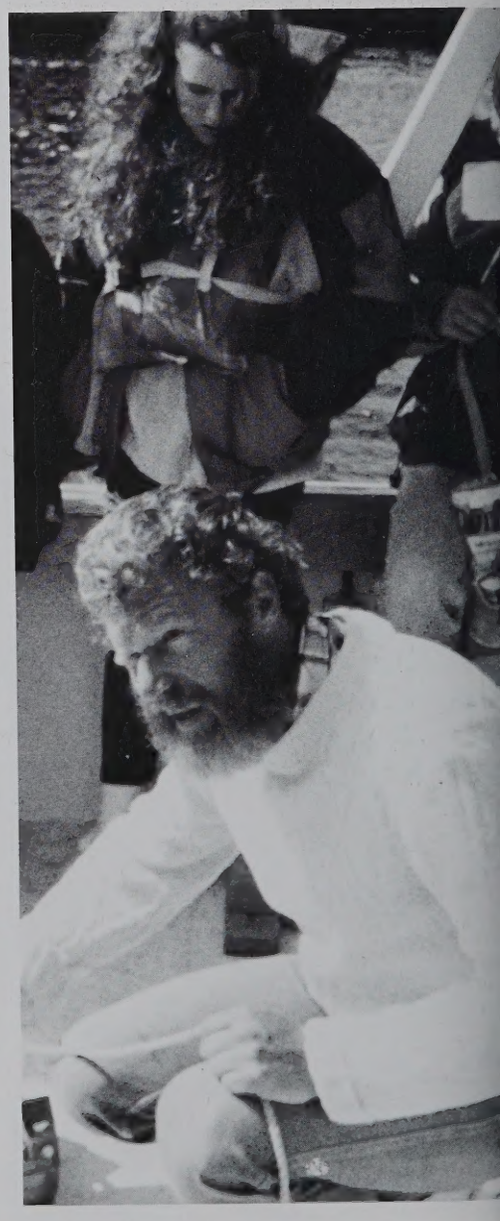
Mr. Randy Pate and student Terrance Williams confer on a math problem.

Oceans Apart. Here, two students were divided by an aquarium instead of an ocean, but they still managed to study together.



Eduardo Gregory appears deep in scientific thought.

A three-hour tour. That's all, promised Jamie Leland.



"The Skipper" explains the workings of a trap. One student in the background enjoys a bag of Doritos as he listens.

Scientists embark on an age of discovery . . .

Blinded or guided by science?

Q What role will science play in America's future?

A "The success of the planet as a whole depends on scientific discoveries, each of which hands us a new bag of problems. We're going to have face population problems in our republic and all over the world. Science is at the heart of how we will continue to grow enough food for all of these people."

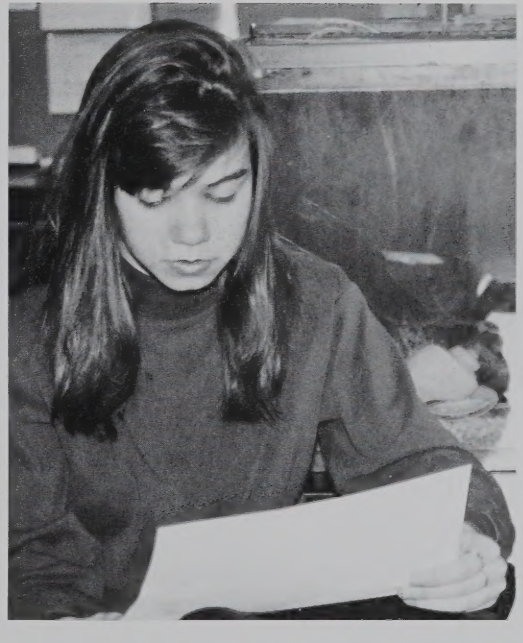
Maxine Singer

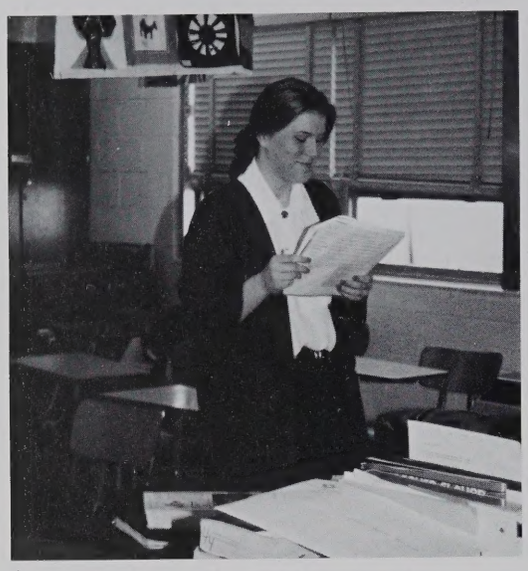


The atmosphere in Mr. Carter's Oceanography class is as soothing as the sea itself.

The annual oceanography field trip provided the perfect setting for seasoned sailors. Here, students observe a specimen.

Congresswoman Yvonne Miller explains the legislative process to a group of senior government students.

Alex Johnson reviews some materials for Ms. Ashby's world history class.



Ms. Ashby offers some pointers to students before class starts.

Ms. Blackman asks a question of her government class.

Social Studies shows where you are and where you've been

Social Studies

Q What impact does the past have on the present and future?

A "To look backward for a while is to refresh the eye, to restore it, and to render it the more fit for its prime function of looking forward." Margaret Fairless Barber

Ms. Tillet teaches a lesson to her senior government class.

A student searches his government book to a question in Ms. Tillet's class.

A chef from Johnson and Wales Cooking School demonstrates the proper way to prepare a French omelet.

Home Economics prepares students for careers

Who's in the kitchen?

Q What good is home economics for students planning careers?

A "Today's home economics explores careers in culinary arts and fashion design. No matter what career choice you make, you'll need to be able to take care of your home." senior Cornell Marshburn

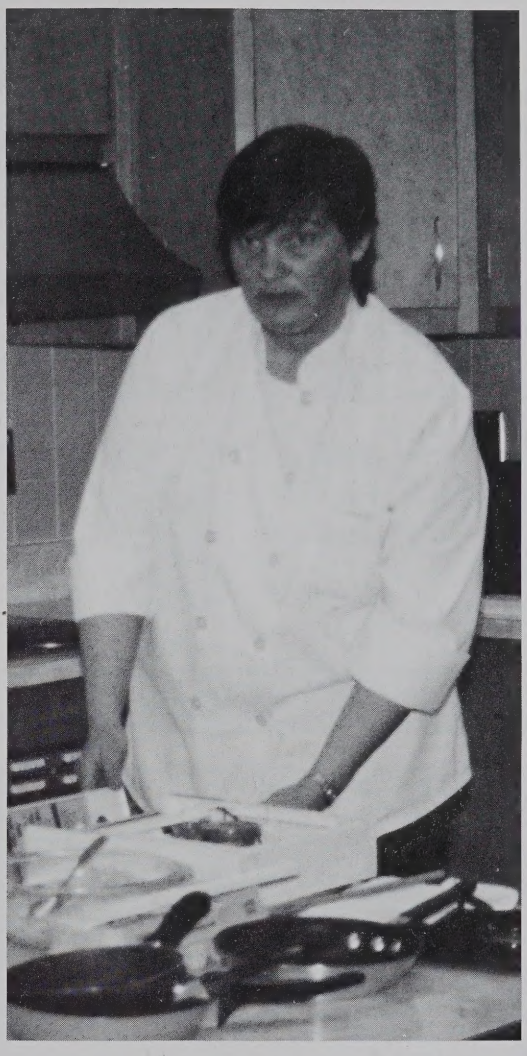
Home Economics teacher Susan Fineout goes over a point about nutrition with a student.

Chef Bayside!

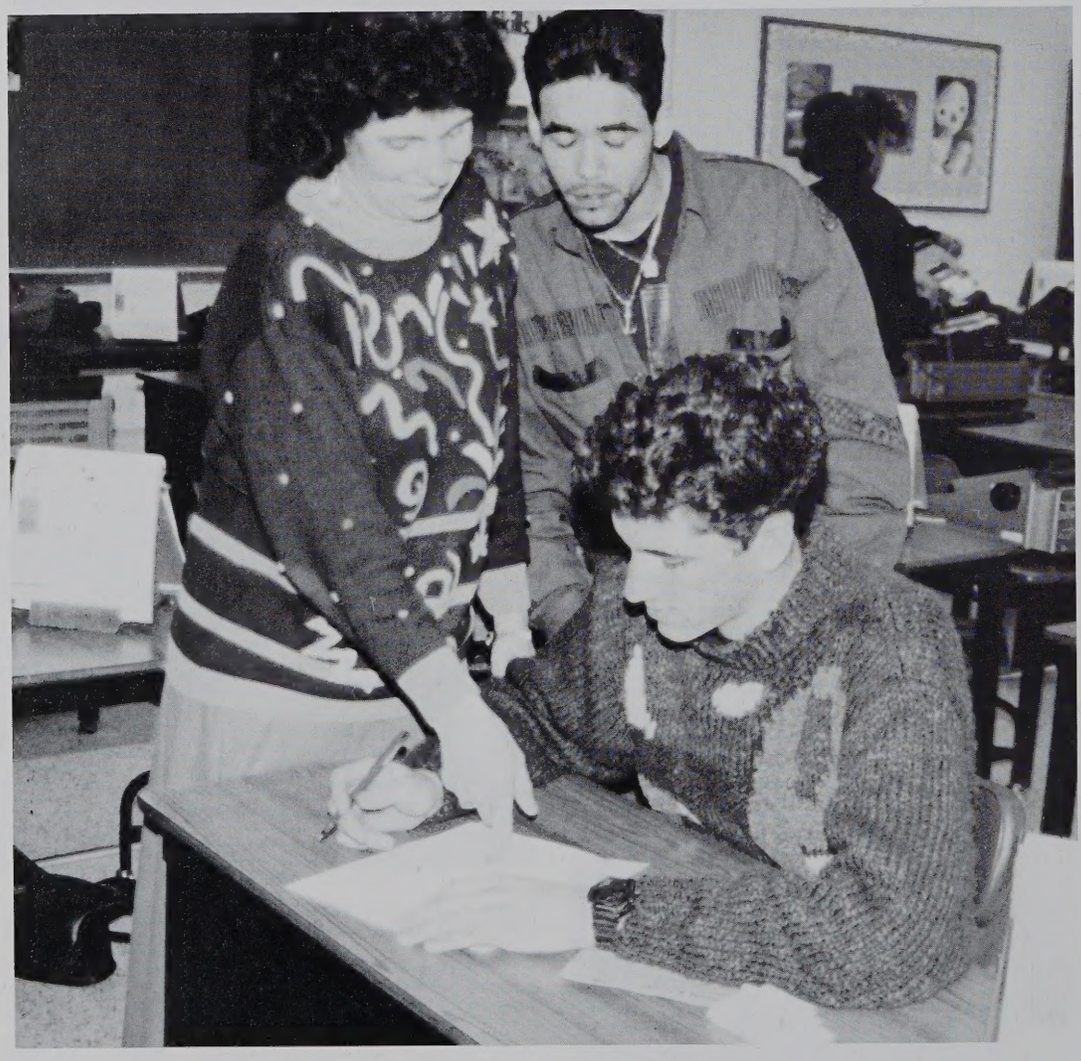


Rodney Coker looks on as his classmate mocks the proper method for cooking a French omelette.

Kammie McNeilly and Danielle Midgette review their notes for class.

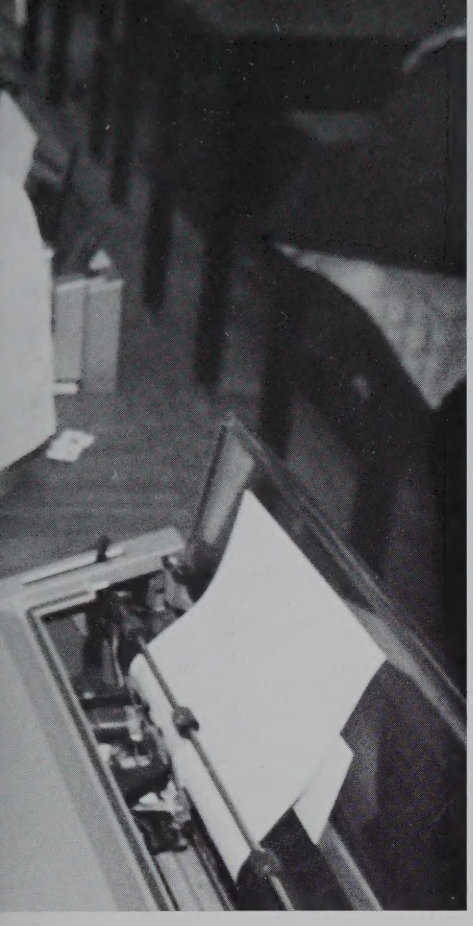
Don't look at the keys! These typing students diligently keep their eyes on their assignment.

Mouse + trap. Some computer students show off their sense of humor. Our Mariner photographer found this set-up in the computer lab. Stray mice, beware!



Mrs. Parr points out the correct answer for one of her students as another looks on hoping to get some information.

Just me and my machine! When you get right down to it, you're on your own when the clock is ticking. This student concentrates to do her best on a time typing drill.



How to succeed in business without really trying

Who's minding the store?

Q What is the secret to success in the business world?

A "High expectations are the key to everything."
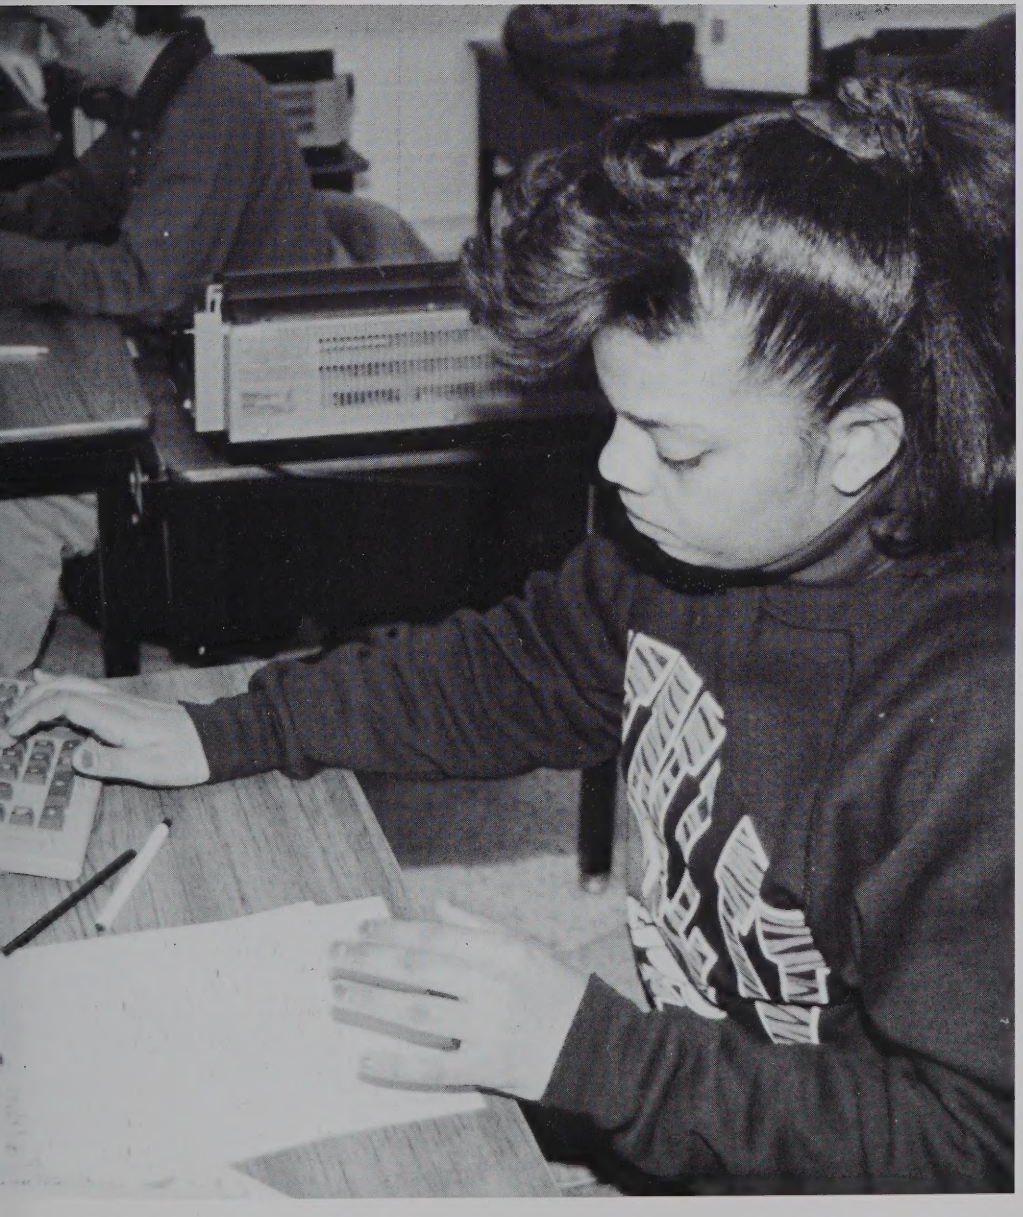
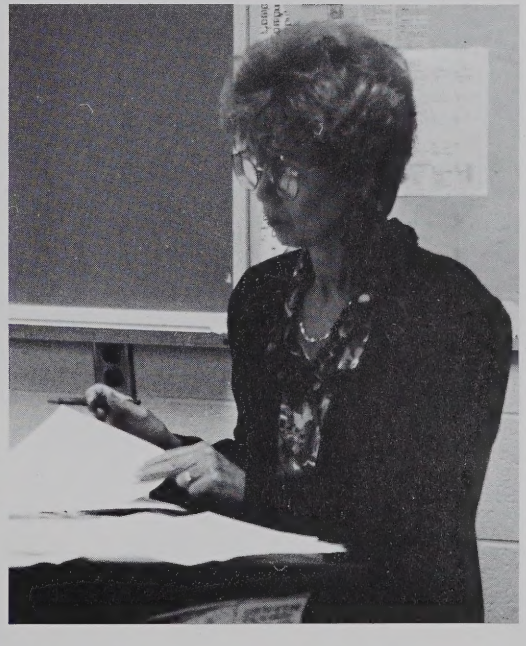
Sam Walton

"Success has a simple formula: do your best, and people may like it."
Sam Ewing





Business Education teacher Lynne Edwards goes over some papers before class.

This Business Education student figures out a problem using the 10-key calculator.

Julian Etheridge measures wood for a project.

Gaining technology literacy increasingly important . . .

Is it man-made?

Q How can technology education classes help students in college?

A "I am interested in architecture. Drafting class gave me some hands-on experience related to that field. It gave me an idea of what to expect." senior Kenneth Escoe

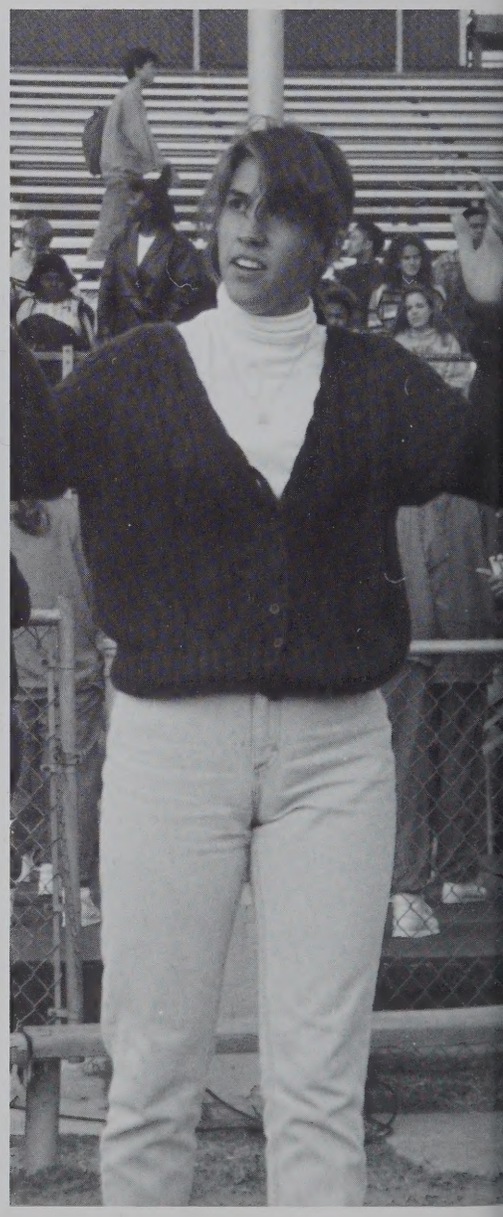
Technology teacher Rob Stover assists a student with a drafting project.

Safety goggles make the proper fashion statement in technology class.

Circle of horns.

Listening intently for instructions, but ready to play at any time seemed to be the motto for Marlin band members. Discipline seemed to be the key to success.

The Bayside orchestra: seated and ready for musical action.



Maestro!

And the band played on . . .

Music in the air.

Q Do musicians truly march to their own beat?

A I listened, motionless and still;
And, As I mounted up the hill,
The music in my heart I bore,
Long after it was heard no more. William Wordsworth

Two band members ready themselves for a performance.

The Bayside drum brigade takes the field.

Members of the Madrigal singing group gather around teacher Ms. McWaters-Wilkes for an impromptu rehearsal.

Darlin' Marlins. Bayside's all-female choral ensemble poses in all their finery before a performance.

Concentration! Chorus students wait intently for their part. No one wanted to be responsible for singing at the wrong time.

Singing allows students to express themselves

Marlin Music

Q Is music the universal language?

A "Music is the only language in which you cannot say a mean or sarcastic thing."

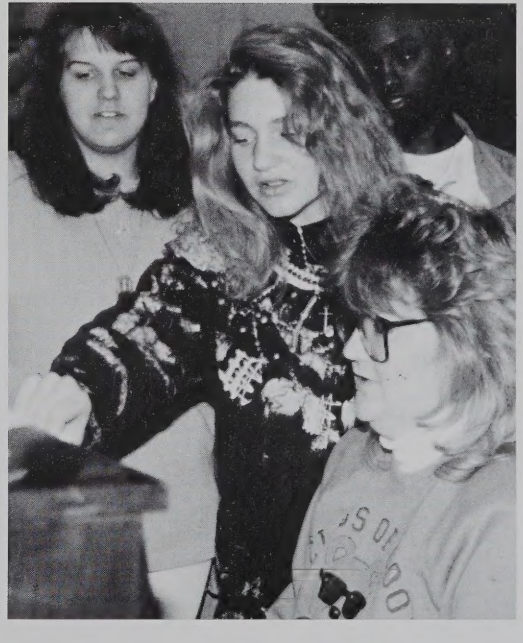
Lord Erskine

"After silence that which comes nearest to expressing the inexpressible is music."

Aldous Huxley

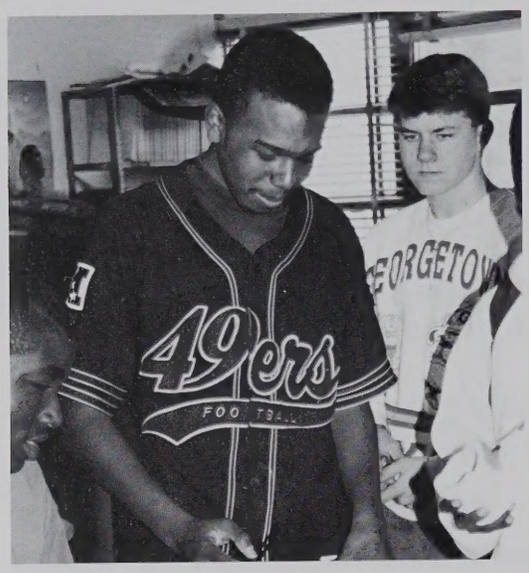


A student turns the music for Mrs. McWaters-Wilkes during a rehearsal for a Madrigals concert.

Formal Attire. The stylish outfits match the harmonious sounds of the Bayside Madrigals.

Dual Images. Student artwork adorned the hallways and classrooms of Bayside.

How many art students does it take to mix paint?



An artistic environment brought out the creativity in students who did not realize they were artists.

The pleasure of creating a work of art is obvious by this student's expression.

Art classes tap into student reservoirs of creativity

Artist Colony

Q What is art?

A "Art is the demonstration that the ordinary is extraordinary."

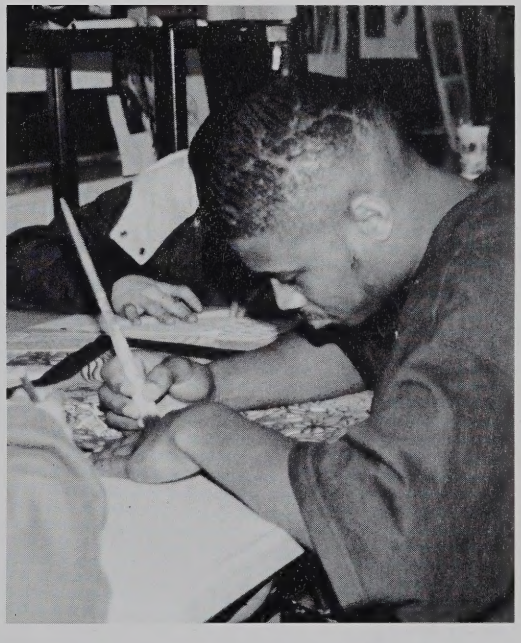
Amedee Ozenfant

"Once I knew that I wanted to be an artist, I had made myself into one."

Judy Chicago



Artist at work. The power of concentration allowed students to find creativity in the classroom.

Melissa Smith imitates her favorite work of art.

Who wants to be an actor? I do! I do!

I'm getting a feeling. I am definitely getting a feeling.

Now let me get this straight. Are you sure this is how Meryl Streep got her start?

Aspiring Actresses. Two drama students act out a scene from "Inside Out," one of Bayside's spring productions.

Drama classes unlock imagination

The play's the thing

Q What is this thing called drama?

A "Aristotle called drama 'imitated human action.' " The Bayside thespians defined drama countless times before enthusiastic audiences. The 1993 performances included "Fools," "The Miracle Worker," a series of student-directed one-act plays, and a musical revue.

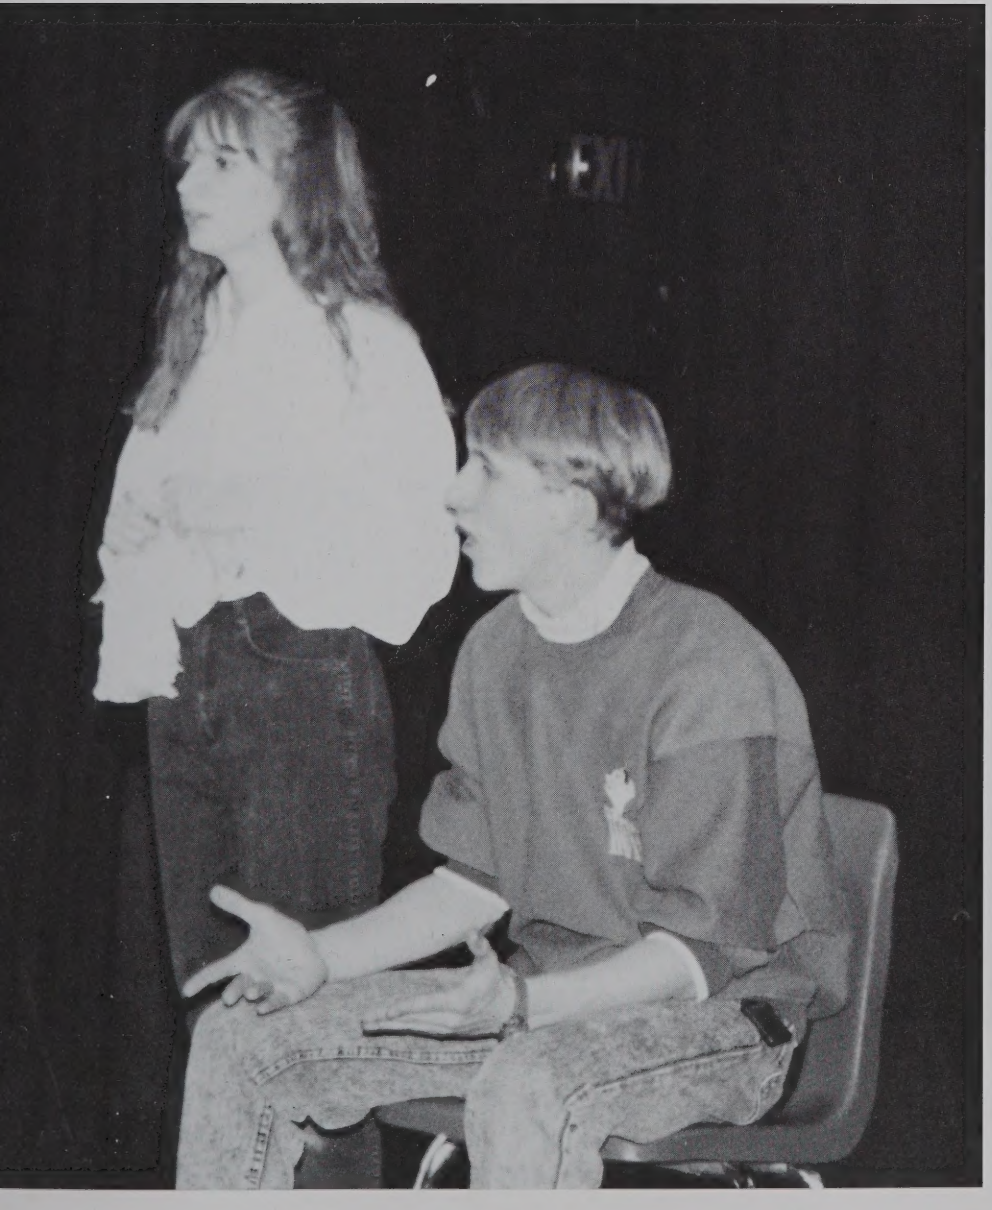
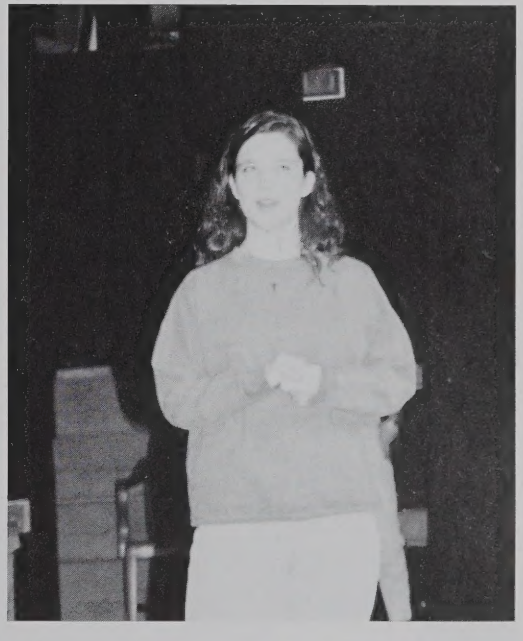
Before any actor took the stage for a performance, they logged hours of rehearsal. Audiences viewed the polished performance without a thought to the hours of work that went into it, but the performers knew that there was more than meets the eye when they took the stage.



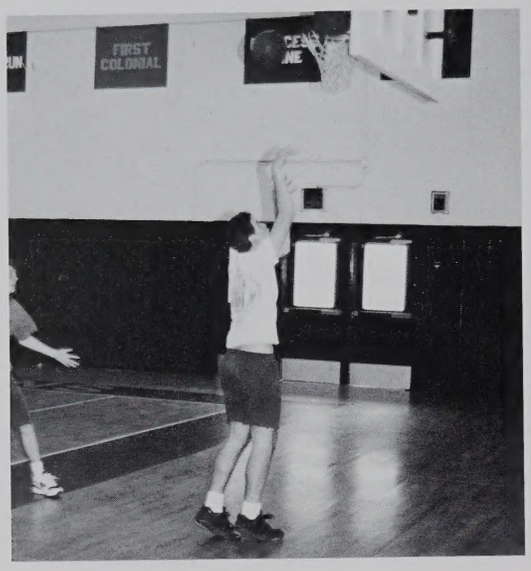


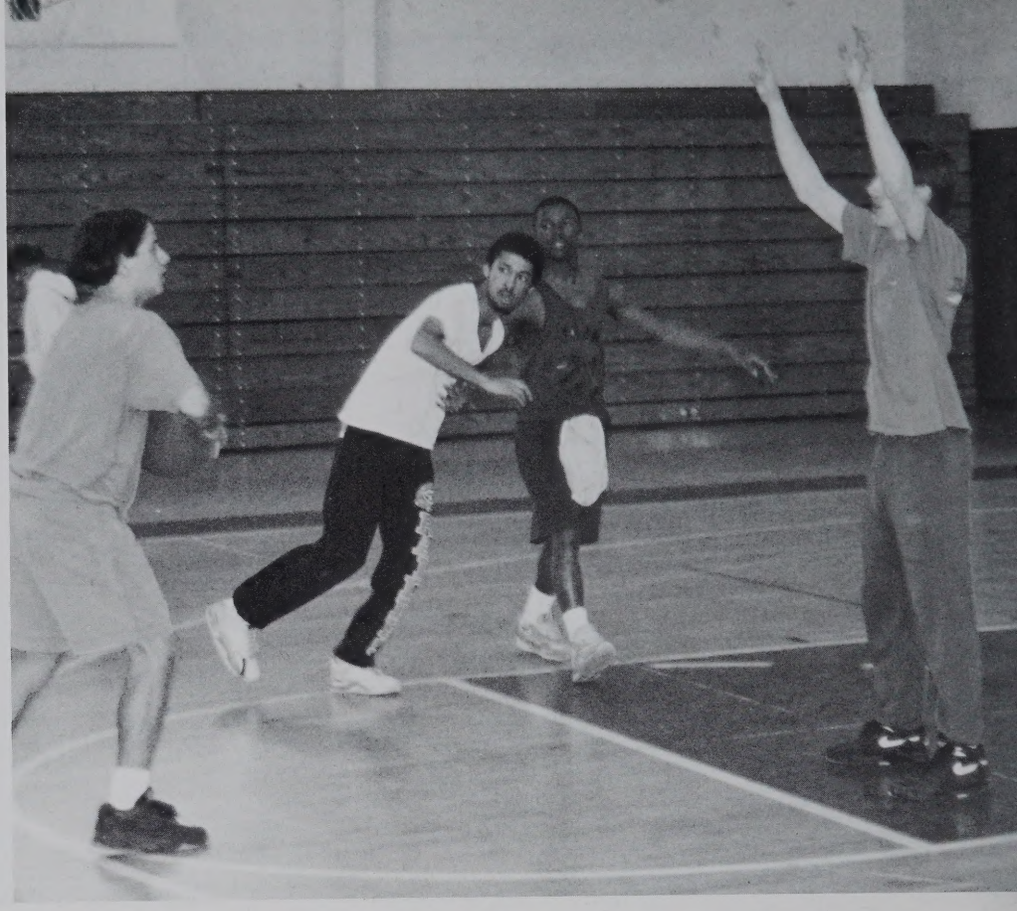
These two actors listen to directions from the unseen director, drama teacher Leslie Rutherford.

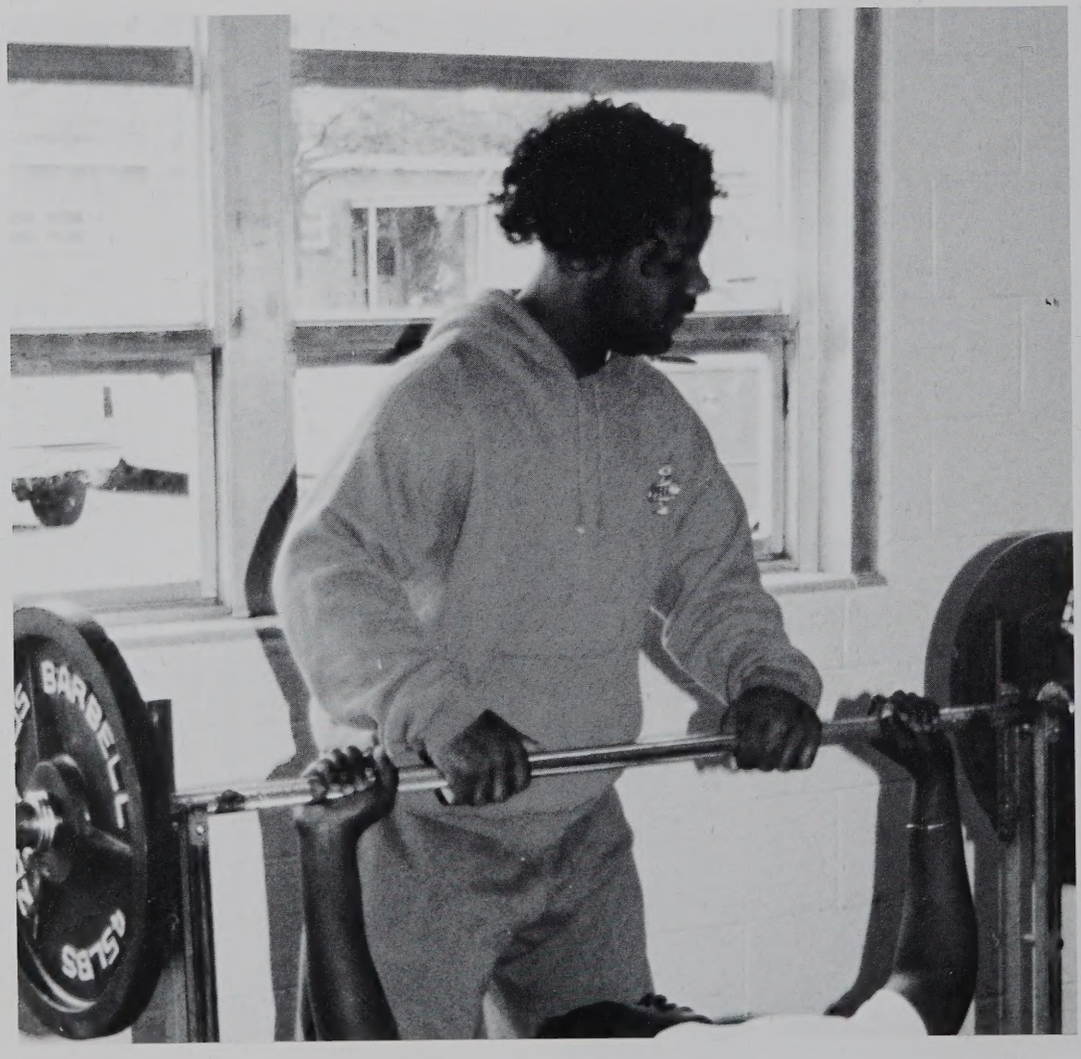
To be or not to be?

It's not the NBA, but it'll do for now. Students show off their moves on the court. No one rides the bench in P.E. class.

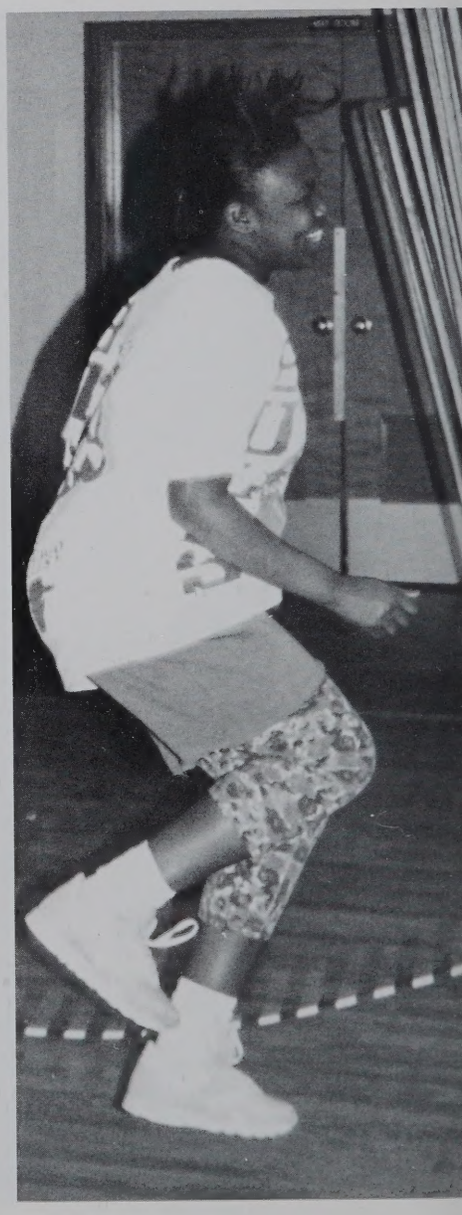
Jordan Wannabe.



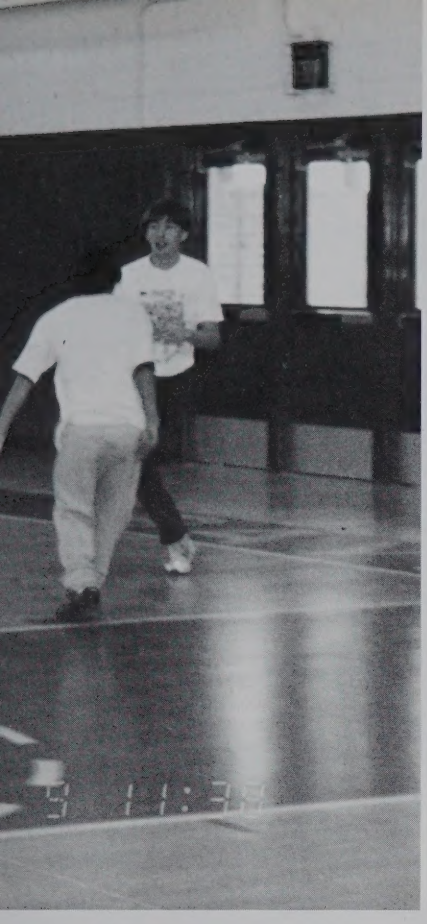




Shun Johnson helps a classmate in the weight room. P.E. definitely relies on class participation.



Jerri Fisher enjoys a vigorous double-dutch jump-rope session.



Physical education needed by all students

Just Do It!

Q What makes physical education such an important part of school?

A "Physical activity helps release pressure and stress. P.E. breaks up the day's monotony; most of the activities are fun. It's my chance to get away from it all. I always feel better after that class." junior Alex Johnson

Kyle Benwitz makes it all look so easy.

Safety first. All students who life weights must have a spotter.

Wendy,
Thanks for all the effort and extra effort that you put forth in class this year. I know my expectations were high but you went above and beyond. Continue to strive to be your best and don't let anything or anyone hold you back!
Love ya!

Marlins Enjoy Winning Season

Bayside Boys finish in 2nd Place in Beach District

The Bayside Boys' basketball team finished the season with a 16-5 overall record. The Marlins finished in second place in the Beach district and were ranked number 6 in the Tidewater Polls.

The Marlin boys started the season by winning both games in the Tymark/Burger King Classic in Norfolk. The Marlins defeated Sussex Central 58-47 and Booker T. Washington 58-52. The Marlins went on a nine game winning streak from that point.

The Marlins were led in scoring by Greg Melvin, 16.5 average; Dontae Blaney, 10.3 average; and LaShawn Jones 9.3 average. Leading rebounders were LaShawn Jones and Dontae Blaney.

Greg Melvin made First Team All District. Dontae Blaney and LaShawn Jones were Honorable Mentions All District.

Sharply dressed Marines added polish to Bayside events. Here, members of the color guard talk with a band parent.

In or out of uniform, there's just something about a Marine. A group of Marines traded their uniforms for costumes to present a black history show at the school.

Sgt. Janel Avery was a familiar sight in the halls of Bayside. Here, she awaits the start of a show which she and Sgt. Tommy Ambrose co-wrote, produced, and directed.

"Ain't it good to know — you got a friend."
— Otis Redding

Throughout the years
Throughout the tears
Through thick and thin
You can count on a friend
Times may get you down
You may wear an eternal frown
But a friend tries all the while
To inspire you to smile
So now we say goodbye
But don't be upset, don't cry
The end of the road hasn't come
It's only a stepping stone for the long run
In our life it's only a small part
One memory among many to lock in our hearts
Remember always, until the end
The time and love shared with your friends . . .

CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR ACCOMPLISHMENTS!!

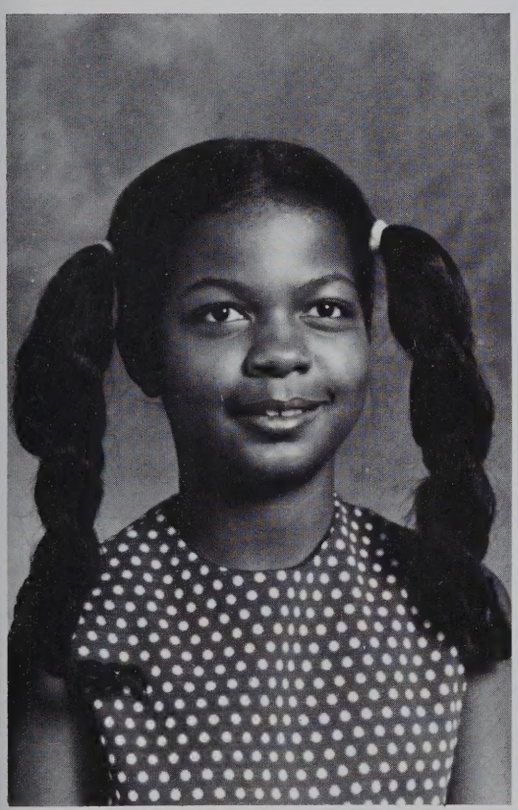
Editing the yearbook is the most hectic thing that I have ever done. The staff will remember those red and white stickies, looking for missing pictures, and trying to identify people we have never seen in our lives before!

Ms. Best will remember those creative quotes, the 'helpful' computer room, and the day the police came to school!

I would like to give a special thanks to those people who came and helped with the yearbook when they could. Special thanks to Ms. Best who deserves it the most for making this a wonderful yearbook and spending many Saturday nights at school.

I wish the best for everyone who has worked so hard to achieve their goals and strive for the best. On graduation day, remember that it is the beginning of a new life with new opportunities, people, and places. Always remember high school because it only happens once in a lifetime. So, underclassmen take this advice: think of the future because you will face it tomorrow.

Deanne Dent
Editor-in-Chief



It has been a rollercoaster year. Like all rollercoasters, it has been exciting, fun, and a little scary. The excitement came from creating new ways of looking at the same events; the fun came from finding just the right photo or words; and the scary part came from getting it all just right and right on time. Needless to say, my staff members have seen me at m.s.l. (maximum stress level)! Well, after every rollercoaster ride you realize that being scared was part of the fun and it was, after all, only a ride.

Thank you to my staff for your dedication, hard work, and love. Oh yeah, thank you also for the Pepsis and putting up with my after-work attitude. You are truly The BEST! I love you guys.

Deanne, my after-hours buddy, you were wonderful beyond words. The world is yours, take it.
